

National Indian Parent Information Center

Spring 2012

Serving Indian Families who have children with disabilities

We are once again honored and humbled to be able to serve Native American family members who have children/young adults with special education needs, as well as Parent Training and Information Centers, and Community Parent Resource Centers.

Who we are

The National Indian Parent Information Center (NIPIC) is a non-profit Native American organization which is currently funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Education. We serve Native American parents who have children/young adults with special education needs, ages 0-26.

The 13 member board of directors that guides National Indian Parent Information Center consists of 11 members who are Native Americans and are also parents of children with disabilities. Included on the board of directors are representatives

Our main office will be housed in the beautiful state of Oregon, with an satellite office in Oklahoma.

What We Do

Our primary goal is to provide culturally appropriate trainings using materials including workshop materials, printed information and fact sheets designed for and by Native American people. Our materials are reproduced and distributed to anyone who requests this information at no cost.

We provide workshops on the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), Individual Education Program (IEP), and Early Childhood Special Education (all workshops listed on page 3).

Another focus we will have is to provide leadership trainings for Native American families who have children with disabilities.

For the next two years we will hold an annual conference. These conferences bring together Native American families and service providers throughout the country. We will keep you posted on the future date for this year's conference.

NIPIC's annual two day conference will bring together Indian parent leaders, tribal leaders, and tribal educators. This conference will also bring together tribal and government agencies including: the Bureau of Indian Education (BIE), Indian Health Service (IHS), Office of Indian Education (OIE), Indian Head Start programs, and the FACE program. This in-depth conference will cover national trends and practices for successful outcomes for Native students with disabilities. Over 200 Native American parents and professionals are expected to attend our annual conference.

Thank you to those who have provided words of encouragement and support to NIPIC, and to those we have not connected with yet, we look forward to working with you soon.

Ka dish day (until we meet again),
